

For Immediate Release

March 08, 2010

El Centro, California

DRIVE Off Road Racing is proud to announce Competitive Metals as the 2010 championship series sponsor. The Race-Dezert.com 250, the first 2010 Plaster City race for DRIVE, will kick off under the new title of Competitive Metals 2010 Championship Series presented by DRIVE.

Doug Wasser – President DRIVE Off Road Racing -”As a start up series, we depend heavily on our sponsors. Not just for financing, but for support within the off road community. Having companies like RDC, ORW, FiberwerX, and now Competitive Metals supporting us makes it easier for us to do our jobs. Our job is to set the stage for the racers and let them do what they do best. Adding the Competitive Metals name to the series is the weight we needed to tip the scales from start up to progressive. Competitive Metals and company owner Greg Parker shares the same passion for local off road racing that all of us at DRIVE have. Our goal is to push Plaster City and California racing to the next level with the support and enthusiasm of our new series title sponsor”.

Greg Parker – “Having over 30 years experience in new metals and manufacturing processes, it’s no accident Competitive metals is a leading distributor of chromoly, steel and aluminum products to top fabricators and racers in the United States and Mexico. No matter how large or small your metal needs are everyone is welcome at Competitive Metals, our experienced staff is at your service, because all of our customers are treated like winners.”

Greg himself is an accomplished drag racer and off road racer and has been involved in and supporting motorsports since 1975.
